

ABOUT PAGE

This project uses a force sensitive resistant sensor (FSR) to examine whether users exert more pressure on on a button when watching visual stimuli of their action or when seeing nothing at all. The test will track time and day of the week in which user's force is measured hoping to examine whether stress levels may be linked with pressure exerted and whether stresses are higher at different times during the week (and closer to end of term).

RESULTS PAGE

RESULTS PAGE 2

